PRESS RELEASE

IAPR: New tax administration model

The Independent Authority for Public Revenue advances the organisational structure of the tax administration's regional services with the aim of providing the best service to taxpayers.

Specifically, with the decisions of the Governor of IAPR, Giorgos Pitsilis, new services are introduced in Athens and Thessaloniki respectively.

In more detail:

- The two Capital Taxation Centres, from 29/01/2024, will take over all the responsibilities of taxes on real estate ownership, inheritances, donations, parental benefits, winnings from gambling and real estate transfers, which are currently covered by the Attica and Thessaloniki Tax Offices.
- The two Tax Procedures and Service Centres take over, from 01/04/2024, the responsibilities of income taxation, VAT and special taxes, registry, which are transferred from the Tax Offices of the prefectures of Attica and Thessaloniki.

This restructuring, together with the Certification and Collection Centres of Attica and Thessaloniki, whose opening has also been arranged, allow the evolution of the current Tax Office into services for those citizens who do not have access to digital media, but also to guide taxpayers in the correct fulfilment of their obligations. Thus, within 2024, the landscape of services for citizens and workers will change, thanks to enhanced and enriched services with experienced and specialised staff, modern infrastructure and safe buildings with a minimal energy footprint

The Governor of IAPR, Giorgos Pitsilis, stated: “We are implementing our plan to centralise the operational functions, with the aim of providing optimal services to citizens. We expect that, within 2024, citizens will reap the benefits of our organisational changes in the new services, in Athens and Thessaloniki where almost 50% of TINs operate, but also in our new Tax Offices.”
